Crusoe's Bargain Dept. Store.

Cash and One Price.

Oscar Jenne, of Woodboro, was here Monday and Tuesday.

John A. Thomas, of Marshfield, was among Rhinelander visitors Monday.

James O'Melia and wife, of Hazelhurst, spent Sunday with friends in this city.

Oxblood, russet, tan and black lace shoes, the Neenah make, at Crusoe's Bargain Dept. Store.

Mrs. S. Kelley has returned from a two weeks' visit with friends at West Superior and Duluth.

Geo. L. Madison, of Neenah, was in the city Monday taking orders for his tailoring house at Neenah.

O. D. Vaughn, of Beaver Dam, visited his son, Hugh, in this city, last week, remaining over Sunday.

Ten to twelve months is usually the wear you get out of the Neenah shoe at Crusoe's Bargain Dept. Store.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational church will meet with Mrs. Olson, North Side, Wednesday p. m., May 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pingry made a pleasure trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis last week, returning home Monday morning.

A basket social will be held next Saturday night, May 1, at the home of Oscar Carlson, who lives in one of the Crofoot cottages.

W. H. Voshung, a Gilman, Iowa, lumberman, was looking up the lumber business in Rhinelander and vicinity the first of the week.

Rev. Rosander left last Sunday night to attend conference meeting at De Kalb, Ill. He will also visit relatives in Rockford, Ill. and Chicago.

Cranks on fishing were all out Sunday trying their luck. As we have not heard any big fish story, we conclude they did not meet with very good success.

Joe Nathan came down from camp and spent Sunday with his family, returning Monday noon. Joe is doing some summer logging in the vicinity of Eagle River.

Mr. Erick Matson and Miss Thilda Soderstrom were married by Rev. Rosander at the home of Eric Johnson last Saturday night. They will make Rhinelander their home.

On account of the unavoidable delay of his stock and the lateness of the season, G. W. Van Vleet will not put in a line of sample shoes this spring as was advertised in this paper last week.

Next Lord's Day, Rev. Geo. A. Cressey, pastor of the First Baptist church, will preach at 10:30 on the "Blessings of Church Membership." At 7:30 on Adam. A very hearty invitation to all.

Jas. Michelson came home from Michigan last Friday and spent Sunday with his family. He returned Monday noon, accompanied by John Diller, who will assist him in building the work and putting the mill in shape to start to running.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Mr. John Fremstad and Miss Anle Thigstad, of the North Side, to take place at the Norwegian church in this city on the evening of May 8. A reception at the residence of T. H. Johnson will follow the ceremony.

During the past two weeks the Fuller House has been undergoing a thorough renovation, and the painters and paper hangers were kept busy for a time. Everything is in order again, and we ought to be neater or better hotel can be found than the Fuller. The new wall decorations in the office add greatly to its appearance, and make it an attractive place.

Work will soon be commenced on the new block to be erected by Matt Stapleton on Stevens street, immediately opposite the Fuller House. It will be built of brick, and two stories high. It will have a frontage of forty feet, a depth of seventy feet, and will be divided into two store buildings, while a portion of the upper floor will be used for offices and the remainder for lodge rooms. It will be fitted out with all modern conveniences and will be a great addition to the looks of this street.

Two years ago, R. J. Warren, a druggist at Pleasant Brook, N. Y., bought a small supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sums up the result as follows: "At that time the goods were unknown in this section; today Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a household word." It is the same in hundreds of communities. Where ever the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy become known the people will have nothing else. For sale at Palace Drug Store.

Last week John Hess took a trip down the line for the purpose of buying some stock to put on his farm about one mile west of this city. He brought twenty-seven head of young stock back with him, and intends buying more. This is the commencement of a large stock farm, as Mr. Hess informs us that he intends to settle in Rhinelander permanently, and devote his whole time and attention to this branch of business. His farm is one of the best in the county, comprising about two hundred acres, one hundred of which are fenced and ready for pasture. By another summer he will have one of the best stock farms to be found in northern Wisconsin.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish the Forest county division bill, which was approved and became a law April 21. As it passed Oneida county gets all of towns 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27 in range 11 east, and town 25 in range 9 and 10 east. We fail to see where Oneida county gains anything by acquiring this new territory, except it be the assuming of several thousand dollars indebtedness which it brings with it. However, the people wanted it, and the people's will is law.

Wisconsin Legislature Adjourned.

The legislature of the state of Wisconsin adjourned last Saturday subject to call, with the understanding that it will be called together again some time in August to finish up some of the necessarily delayed business, including the constitutional amendments voted on by the people of the state at the last general elections. This district was very lucky in having a live and successful business man in the Assembly representing it, as some of the much needed legislation affecting this particular district was enacted. Among the more important of these measures we will mention the Soo Railway bill, restricting this road and the South Shore & Atlantic, both of which are owned and controlled by the great trans-Atlantic Canadian Pacific R. Y. running as it does near the border line between the United States and Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts. The Soo and South Shore Railways were started and built by American capital, but subsequently were bought by the Canadian Pacific R. Y. Co., and used as feeders for the big foreign corporation. They were patronized by American business in the states traversed by them and from which they obtained their charters, but they were acting in a very selfish manner toward them by changing at the rate of four cents a mile on local passenger rates, by remaining in a registered class such as our general laws permit railroads to remain in while they are unfinished and have not yet gained any terminal facilities, etc. Now that these roads have become almost transcontinental in themselves and have the best terminal of any railroad, and can in no way be considered to be in swaddling clothes, they should be treated on an equality, at least, with our own American railroads. Four cents a mile local passenger rate was actually prohibitory, as a poor homesteader along the lines could not find a place to work, during the past three years, where he could get the cash and receive $1.00 per day for his labor, and he could save that amount by walking twenty-five miles, which he could do easily in a day.

Then again, the situation of these roads enables them to dodge many of the regulations and rules of our interstate commerce laws, dodging as they do right out of the states where their business originates into foreign territory, carrying freight thousands of miles east or west and shoving it back across the line again to its destination in some other state on these American feeders. Only a nominal freight is credited to the American branch, the greater portion of it being absorbed by the Canadian corporation, and this enables and makes it obligatory for these American branch managers to make a poverty stricken report to the different railway commissioners of the states.

So much for Gid Clark's efforts in that direction, and it was no easy fight either, as railroad lobbies were especially strong this year.

Next in importance comes up for passage at several different sessions and got knocked down and out each time, although it had every feature of merit. The State Park lands are more or less familiar to every man in this district. There are about 150,000 acres, of 50,000 acres, in large and small lying separate.

There are about twenty towns containing 400,000 acres. The Park lands only comprise about one-eighth of the area of this territory and are in no wise adapted to the purpose for which they were taken out of the market in 1878. But still, after the state had sold all the pine anyone wanted up to that time, it really left for State Park purposes the swamp and barren tracts and refuse of the pine land investors. To be sure there are some tracts of it which contain a small growth which was not considered merchantable timber up to 1878, and occasionally a forty is found containing a small amount of good pine which was overlooked, which always occurs in any timber country. These lands have been the constant prey of log thieves, fires, floods and the wind, and any practical lumberman knows that these destroying agencies will deteriorate from the value of any tract of timber lands under the existing circumstances to which this State Park has been subjected. The bill places the matter in the hands of the commissioners of state lands to be carefully estimated by first-class estimators, whose duty it will be to estimate the timber and classify it as follows: White Pine, three classes; Norway, two classes, and other timber as well in like manner. Also kind of soil, etc.

The lands are to be advertised in newspapers in the lumber regions at least three months after the estimates are made, and sold at auction in the city of Rhinelander. The lands remaining unsold after having been offered at public sale are to be placed on the market the same as other state lands at the price established by the commissioners from information obtained as above.

Too much credit cannot be given to our pioneer citizen, Gid H. Clark. Some were a little shaky in their belief in his ability, when he was nominated, to effect the difficult legislation we so much needed, but he has proved himself a success in statesmanship as well as a business man, just as the New North predicted.

A Spring Visit.

To Minneapolis and St. Paul can be made at the exceedingly low rate of $1.50 named by the Soo Line. Tickets sold May 15 to 18 inclusive, good returning on or before May 19. Take in the Northwest May Festival and Unwinding of Ole Bull Statue.

Dress Goods Sale!

Beginning Monday, May 3, and continuing all the week, we will sell Dress Goods within 10 per cent of cost. We want you to see the goods. We want you to buy them. In fact it's time to commence lowering the stock for the season, and we are only too glad to give you an opportunity to buy and have your dress made before hot weather sets in, so you will be ready for it. We are going to try and make this the

of the season. Space will not permit our quoting prices or so large a stock, but we will be glad to give you prices and show you the goods if you will give us the time. Samples always cheerfully given.

Spring Draps.

We have just received another shipment of Capes. This makes the third time, so far this season, that we have been obliged to order Spring Wraps—a very pleasant duty too. We only mention it to show you that the line we carry is right. Proper in style and finish. Proper in price—98 cents to $11.00.

Pine Going Fast.

The secretary of agriculture reports to the senate that white pine and other coniferous timber standing in the northern states today amounts to 100 billion feet divided as follows: Wisconsin 10 billion; Michigan 15 billion; Pennsylvania 10 billion; New York 15 billion, and the remainder among other states. The annual cut is 20 billion. There is standing in Canada 27 billion feet of white pine, and the annual consumption is two billion. Since 1873 there has been in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota 154 billion feet board measure, 87 billion shingles. In the whole country 200 billion feet board measure in 18 years. The wood pulp industry now consumes 800 million feet of pine, hemlock and spruce annually. The pine forests will be all cut off in five or six years at the present rate of consumption.

Clean Up.

Now that our long session of cold weather has adjourned in favor of milder spring it would be well for our people to pay attention to the accumulated heaps of filth, garbage, etc., which have been carelessly allowed to fill our yards and alleys. All property owners and residents should see to it that this rubbish is removed at the first opportunity. In a sanitary point of view this should be insisted upon, as it is an undoubted fact that contagious diseases start from germs originating in filth, and as we have been fortunate enough not to be visited by any serious contagious disease, let us exert ourselves to the utmost to avert as far as possible any disaster that might result from our own carelessness. Street Commissioner Veltus has started the work, and is improving the appearance of our business streets by giving them a thorough cleaning.

Stricken with Paralysis.

H. A. Johnson, better known in this city as Professor Johnson, suffered a stroke of paralysis, Monday morning, at Wausau, where he was employed in the Alexander Stewart Lumber Co.'s saw mill. During the night he suffered considerably with a severe pain in his right leg, but toward morning it left him. He arose in the morning, as usual, and went down to the office. He entered the wash room, and after washing himself started across the floor to the comb rack, when he staggered and would have fallen but for the clerk and some others who saw him, and caught him and carried him to a chair. A doctor was immediately summoned, and it was found that the whole of his right side was paralyzed. He was brought to his home in this city yesterday, and there is no change in his condition. Mr. Johnson's friends in this city will be pained to learn of his serious affliction.

A New Wisconsin Line.

The following, taken from the Evening Wisconsin, will interest all of our readers. The project is a new one, and will be a surprise to many. Should the road materialize, as promised, with its terminus at Rhinelander, it will prove of great value to this city.

Madison, Wis., April 26.—Articles of association were today filed with the secretary of state by the Wisconsin Inland Lakes and Chicago Railroad company, the announced purpose of which is to construct a railroad 500 miles in length from Chicago to Rhinelander, Wis., with branches to Milwaukee, Madison, Janesville, and such other places as may hereafter be decided upon. It is intended to run through into the counties of Kenosha, Racine, Walworth, Rock, Dane, Jefferson, Waushara, Portage, Waupaca, Shawano, Marathon, Lincoln, Langlade and Oneida in Wisconsin, and Cook, Lake, Kane and McHenry in Illinois.

The capital is $5,000,000 divided into 50,000 shares of common stock. The incorporators and directors are: Bayard Taylor, Chicago; F. B. Bryant, Princeton, Ill.; William J. Marks, Jesse B. Barton and George E. C. Johnson, Chicago.

A New Enterprise.

We received a communication this week from the manager of an old established factory in the east, which has been in successful operation for over forty years, asking what Rhinelander could offer in the way of Railroad and other facilities, to secure this enterprise. The company has recently incorporated with $150,000 additional capital, and is seeking a new location in a live city possessing railroad and other advantages, having outgrown its present facilities. No boom or help is wanted, as the company has all the capital required. In view of the fact that two more railroads are promised to build into Rhinelander at no distant date, we think the advantages offered here are as good as can be found. We would suggest that the Advancement Association look into the matter, and see what can be done. Now is the time. Their western representative is C. J. Schellenberger, Bloomington, Ill., with whom the Association can correspond and obtain full particulars.

$4.80 to the Twin Cities and Return.

Tickets will be sold by the Soo Line May 15 to 18, inclusive, to Minneapolis and St. Paul and return, good returning on or before May 19. See Mme. Calve and other notables at Musical Festival; also unveiling of Ole Bull Statue. m13

ADVENTURE WHEEL

"You can talk all you want to, Vic, about your 75 wheel, with its 80 gear, three-point bearings, quick repair tires and what not, but my 75 is all right, and I won't be in the rear on club runs by a long shot."

But the momentary fear passed away, and as he emerged from the woods he began to really enjoy his ride. He was perspiring freely, and some of the up grades made him puff, but at this he smiled as he thought of his rival's high gear.

At last the lights of Valley Stream gleamed ahead, and Jack wheeled into the yard of the appointed roadhouse just as Vic was mounting to return. "Good-by, Jack," that worthy shouted. "I'll see you later at the club."

Then he ventured to stand up. A twig cracking under his foot seemed to him as loud as a rifle report. There was a moment of terrible suspense, and then Jack heard something moving stealthily toward him in the bushes.

Jack uttered an angry ejaculation. In passing over a railroad track his light had been jarred out.

Elephant Nurses in Siam.

The women of Siam trust their children to the care of elephant nurses, and it is said the trust is never betrayed. The elephant, not being susceptible to the charms of the sauntering policeman, nor the social claims of its friends and relatives, is consequently able to devote its entire attention to its charge.

A LOST MOONSTONE.

BY ELEANOR W. F. BATES.

It was a large, bare room, white-washed once, but now colorless as to the ceiling and dingy as to the walls. A dozen sewing machines stood about, each in such light as its work could best attain. But no part of the room was dark, for there were large, high windows and an ample skylight, which let in a noble flood of sunshine, even to dazzling on a clear day, so that Miss Hall, the forewoman of the shirt factory, petitioned Mr. Chester for a curtain.

"Oh, don't shut out that lovely sunlight!" cried a fresh young voice.

"You'll be blind yourself some day, and then you'll know how good it is," replied the unrelenting forewoman.

"I'll send up Peter," said Mr. Chester. "Here's an order for six shirts. They must be just right and made by hand. The eyelet holes must be bigger than common, to accommodate the customer's stud. He left it for a measurement; here it is: keep it today, and hand it to me when you go home. Look out for it."

The patentee and manufacturer of Chester's superior shirts disappeared, and Miss Hall held up the gem and looked at it. Two or three girls left their seats and came, with sewing dangling over their arms, to inspect the stud. It was a really beautiful moonstone of unusual size and luster, set in the narrowest rim of gold.

"I've heard that they are costly things," said Miss Hall. "Go back to your work, girls, and don't idle any longer."

At the extreme end of the room sat two young women. One was a new hand, who had propitiated Miss Hall by a sample of exquisite needlework. Her name was Floretta Simpson. The other, Dolly Burr, was older, and had been in Mr. Chester's employ ever since he had patented his handmade shirts, which, from the untiring excellence of their manufacture, were fast making his fortune. She was now initiating Floretta into certain technicalities. They had to change their seats; for Peter, general utility man, now appeared and draped a white cloth across the sunny skylight, to the darkening of the corner where the girls had placed themselves.

"Can you get along now, think?" said Dolly.

"Yes; you're awfully good," said Floretta. "I know how to sew, but I never could put a garment together. I couldn't do a whole shirt to save my life."

"Well, you won't have to here. We each have separate parts, and work on them all the year round. That girl over there does all the necks, unless there are too many; the new hands try them first. Last month we were rushed so it took all one girl's time just to put in gussets, and she's a quick worker, too. You're in luck to be set to tucking; I think it's such pretty work!"

"If these are all handmade garments, what are those machines doing there?" asked Floretta.

"Well, you see there is a cheaper garment which is substantially handmade, all but the seams; and when work is dull, Mr. Chester gets out a lot of them and sells to retailers; but they are not the patented article, and don't fetch the same price. You'll have to run a machine sometimes. I used to run a machine all the time, but that's hard work."

Floretta sewed in silence a few minutes.

"I hope I shall suit," she said, wistfully. "I never worked away from home before; and you don't know how lonesome I felt when I first came in, and all you girls looked at me."

Up the stairs—for this attic room was reached by no elevator—flattered a beautifully-dressed, fair-faced young woman. She rushed at Miss Hall, kissed her, nodded with a bright smile to two or three of the girls, and began to chatter volubly to the forewoman.

"That's Mrs. Chester," whispered Dolly. "She used to work here before she married Mr. Chester."

Floretta fixed her eyes on the pretty creature. "Can she sew?" she asked; and indeed one would have as soon thought of a butterfly or a white mouse sewing.

"Oh, pretty well; not so well as you and I," answered Dolly, candidly.

"I can't have so much sense here," said Miss Hall, raising her voice. "You must all sew more and talk less. Miss Simpson, if you've got that tucking done, I'll let you work on these eyelet holes. I'll give you the stud to measure by. Now make the eyelet just right for the stem of the stud, neither too large nor too small. Here's the stud; for mercy's sake don't lose it!"

"Oh, let me see it," cried Mrs. Chester, rustling forward. "Oh, what a beauty! The idea of this being wasted on a man! It ought to be set in a lady's ring. Wouldn't it be a lovely pendant for a necklace? It is a cross between a pearl and a moonstone."

She stayed talking some time longer, then departed, stopping on the top stairs to say: "Oh, you poor girls! I wish you could all go to walk this lovely day."

Sometimes it seemed darker after she had gone. The girls fell into a silence. Miss Hall called Peter to uncover the skylight. Floretta found herself short of thread, and, applying to the forewoman for more, was sharply rebuffed for not returning her empty spool, as the rules required. It was now one o'clock. Some of the girls went out for lunch, while others produced small baskets, and in one corner an oil stove did woman duty in brewing divers cups of tea.

Floretta felt lonely. She looked at Dolly, but Dolly was putting out her dinner on the cover of a pasteboard box, so Floretta put on her hat and started for the stairs.

"If you're going out, Miss Simpson," said Miss Hall, looking up from some accounts she was auditing, "you'd better hand me that stud."

WOMAN AND HOME.

A Greatly Needed and Practical Philanthropic Scheme.

There are thousands of self-supporting working women in every large city in the United States. In New York alone there are 70,000 professional women, 200,000 working girls and 9,700 students in art schools, conservatories and colleges. These women, with the exception of the very few thousands who live with friends or relatives, find their only substitute for homes in second-rate boarding-houses. The average working girl finds the only solution of the home problem in the hall bedroom.

Since the advent of the professional woman on the city's horizon, philanthropic men and women have been striving to make room for her and find her a comfortable abiding place.

In Chicago, San Francisco and Denver this has been achieved in a modest way, but nothing adequate to the needs of New York has been suggested or in any way brought before the public until Mrs. Dunlop Hopkins conceived the idea of erecting a series of buildings, handsome, spacious, comfortable and practical, adapted to the requirements of the working women of New York.

Designs for the first four of the series, the Business Woman's hotel, the Art Students' home, the Clubhouse and the model tenement, are already completed. It is calculated that at least two, if not the entire series, will be well under way early in the spring.

The architects for this scheme of women's buildings, which is the most elaborate in the United States, if not in the world, are Miss Mary Gannon and Miss Alice Hands, partners, friends and former pupils of the New York school of applied design. The faithful work, tireless energy, enthusiasm and artistic skill which these young women have brought to bear upon their work in the past year alone is something colossal.

The work throughout, in architectural style and artistic interior finish, is on the largest scale that has ever been undertaken by women architects in any country. From its inception the plan has been entirely in the hands of women—women working for women.

"The crying need of the hour," Mrs. Hopkins said, in speaking of this vast scheme to a New York Journal reporter, "is the providing of a proper home for the hosts of working women that are filling up our cities. Not one home or building, but many of them."

"When I decided to put into operation the plan for a home or hotel for art students I took all my ideas and sketches and submitted them to the students at the league. It was not a question of what I wanted, or what Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt might think sensible, or Mr. Gilder might approve. We might all make good suggestions, but art students are to live in the building, and I want it to be adapted to the needs, and, so far as possible, wishes of the women who are to occupy it."

"In the same manner I consulted business women about a Business Woman's hotel. I talked with professional women, with lawyers, journalists and teachers, and modeled the design of an apartment house and hotel for them on their own views of what was most practical and desirable."

How much such a building as the Business Woman's hotel is needed in New York will be understood by any woman who has ever attempted without an escort to get a night's lodging at any respectable hotel in the city. It is an unwritten law that no woman shall be received unattended, not only in the hotels, but in the first-class boarding houses as well.

It sounds outrageous, does it not? But this custom prevails not only in New York, but to a certain extent in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

If the Business Woman's hotel successfully copes with this one unmitigated evil in the life of the business woman, as it assuredly will, it will have vindicated its right to existence.

Renaissance is the style of architecture suggested for the main body of the building, with an indication of the Greek in the pillars and portico of the two lower stories. The exterior of the hotel, although somewhat resembling the club building, in reality will differ from it in every detail of interior design and construction, aiming, as it does, to meet the demand of the thousands of professional women desiring to limit expenses and to gain comfortable and respectable surroundings for the least expenditure of money. The Club building will rather aspire to the patronage of the more luxurious class, who are willing to pay lavishly for rich surroundings and the conveniences afforded in the more sumptuous building.

The Business Woman's hotel will be divided into a series of small apartments and single rooms. The single rooms will be arranged in groups of six, with one parlor and bath for each group. This arrangement enables each girl to have her "private" parlor one night in the week, and to have a pleasant place for reunion on Sundays. Smaller apartments, of one or two bed-

The faithful work, tireless energy, enthusiasm and artistic skill which these young women have brought to bear upon their work in the past year alone is something colossal.

The work throughout, in architectural style and artistic interior finish, is on the largest scale that has ever been undertaken by women architects in any country. From its inception the plan has been entirely in the hands of women—women working for women.

"The crying need of the hour," Mrs. Hopkins said, in speaking of this vast scheme to a New York Journal reporter, "is the providing of a proper home for the hosts of working women that are filling up our cities. Not one home or building, but many of them."

"When I decided to put into operation the plan for a home or hotel for art students I took all my ideas and sketches and submitted them to the students at the league. It was not a question of what I wanted, or what Mrs. Fred Vanderbilt might think sensible, or Mr. Gilder might approve. We might all make good suggestions, but art students are to live in the building, and I want it to be adapted to the needs, and, so far as possible, wishes of the women who are to occupy it."

"In the same manner I consulted business women about a Business Woman's hotel. I talked with professional women, with lawyers, journalists and teachers, and modeled the design of an apartment house and hotel for them on their own views of what was most practical and desirable."

How much such a building as the Business Woman's hotel is needed in New York will be understood by any woman who has ever attempted without an escort to get a night's lodging at any respectable hotel in the city. It is an unwritten law that no woman shall be received unattended, not only in the hotels, but in the first-class boarding houses as well.

It sounds outrageous, does it not? But this custom prevails not only in New York, but to a certain extent in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

If the Business Woman's hotel successfully copes with this one unmitigated evil in the life of the business woman, as it assuredly will, it will have vindicated its right to existence.

Renaissance is the style of architecture suggested for the main body of the building, with an indication of the Greek in the pillars and portico of the two lower stories. The exterior of the hotel, although somewhat resembling the club building, in reality will differ from it in every detail of interior design and construction, aiming, as it does, to meet the demand of the thousands of professional women desiring to limit expenses and to gain comfortable and respectable surroundings for the least expenditure of money. The Club building will rather aspire to the patronage of the more luxurious class, who are willing to pay lavishly for rich surroundings and the conveniences afforded in the more sumptuous building.

The Business Woman's hotel will be divided into a series of small apartments and single rooms. The single rooms will be arranged in groups of six, with one parlor and bath for each group. This arrangement enables each girl to have her "private" parlor one night in the week, and to have a pleasant place for reunion on Sundays. Smaller apartments, of one or two bed-

WOMAN AND HOME.

A Greatly Needed and Practical Philanthropic Scheme.

There are thousands of self-supporting working women in every large city in the United States. In New York alone there are 70,000 professional women, 200,000 working girls and 9,700 students in art schools, conservatories and colleges. These women, with the exception of the very few thousands who live with friends or relatives, find their only substitute for homes in second-rate boarding-houses. The average working girl finds the only solution of the home problem in the hall bedroom.

Since the advent of the professional woman on the city's horizon, philanthropic men and women have been striving to make room for her and find her a comfortable abiding place.

In Chicago, San Francisco and Denver this has been achieved in a modest way, but nothing adequate to the needs of New York has been suggested or in any way brought before the public until Mrs. Dunlop Hopkins conceived the idea of erecting a series of buildings, handsome, spacious, comfortable and practical, adapted to the requirements of the working women of New York.

Designs for the first four of the series, the Business Woman's hotel, the Art Students' home, the Clubhouse and the model tenement, are already completed. It is calculated that at least two, if not the entire series, will be well under way early in the spring.

The architects for this scheme of women's buildings, which is the most elaborate in the United States, if not in the world, are Miss Mary Gannon and Miss Alice Hands, partners, friends and former pupils of the New York school of applied design. The faithful work, tireless energy, enthusiasm and artistic skill which these young women have brought to bear upon their work in the past year alone is something colossal.

THE NEW NORTH.

W. C. OGDEN, Editor.

Bishop Grafton, of Fond du Lac, held services in the Episcopal church in this place Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Demmon, of Hurley, visited last week at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. O'Brien, on King street.

Tomorrow, the 30th, is the day set aside for Arbor and Bird day. The day should be appropriately observed in Rhineland.

Miss Hattie Steel, of Green Bay, an experienced milliner, can be found during the summer at the milliner store of Miss Ella Leers.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Ryan returned from lower Michigan Tuesday, where they have been spending the past week with Mr. Ryan's parents.

A good many strangers have been in the city the past week, drawn hither by the Clifford vs. the Soo Ry Company case which is being tried here.

A. H. Angus has given up his position with the Rice Lake Lumber Co. and accepted a position in Rhineland. R. G. Ball will fill his former position.—Rice Lake Leader.

The Redmond Dramatic Co. are playing to large audiences at the Grand this week, and are giving the best of satisfaction. Monday night they presented "Davy Crockett," Tuesday, "Helen from the Dead," and Wednesday "Side by Side."

The friends of Frank Kretlow will be pleased to learn that he was successful in passing an examination in pharmacy at LaCrosse last week. Out of forty who took the examination only eleven succeeded in passing and Frank was one of them and is now a full fledged pharmacist.

Rev. E. N. Hawley informs us that as soon as a suitable lot could be secured he would commence the erection of a Free Methodist church. As the Reverend gentleman is a carpenter he intends to do most of the work himself. Of course all contributions, either money, lumber, brick, lime, stone or labor will be thankfully received. Do what you can to help a good thing along.

J. H. Agan, of West Superior, is receiving much deserved praise for his success in securing an annual appropriation for the Northern Wisconsin State Fair Society. The first fair was held at Chippewa Falls last fall, and was a success. Hereafter the society will receive $200 a year from the state. Northern Wisconsin is already a great farming community, but it will be much greater before many years.

The Wisconsin Central Railway Company has the thanks of the New North for a copy of "Vacation Suggestions," received this week. This guide book is one of the neatest gotten up books we have seen, and contains a description of the principal resorts along the line of the Central. Most any one of the resorts mentioned in the book would be a delightful place to spend one's vacation.

An entertainment will be given under the auspices of the ladies of the M. E. church on the evening of May 3, which promises to be one of the most interesting ever introduced by local talent. The title of the piece is "Two Phases of Married Life." The first phase is taken from Longfellow's "Hanging of the Crane," and gives glimpses of the domestic circle from young married life to old age, at intervals of a few years. The second phase is derived from one of Mother Goose's melodies and gives the bachelor who goes to London to get him a wife. It is a new and novel entertainment, and should be well attended. Musical specialties by local talent will also add to the evening's enjoyment. Admission 15 and 25 cents.

The municipal civil service law, which went into effect about a week ago, which protects firemen and policemen from dismissal for political reasons, is a good one, but we think the legislature made a mistake in providing for the immediate appointment of fire and police boards so the outgoing mayors could appoint such boards a day or two before going out of office. It has caused much trouble in many cities, and we may cite Madison as one, where the old mayor appointed a commission, but the new council fixed the salaries. The result is that the capital city is left with a chief of police at a salary of $120 month, and one policeman at a salary of $150 a month. At Oshkosh the new mayor says he will pay no attention to the action of his predecessor, but will make such changes as he sees fit. Marinette, West Superior and many other cities are having the same trouble. This trouble might have been averted, and the legislature saved a great deal of expense, had the law been made to take effect one year from date of its passage. The Republican party cannot afford to take a hand in such a snap scheme as this act was intended to be.

Americans are the most inventive people on earth. To them have been issued nearly 50,000 patents, or more than one-third of all the patents issued in the world. No discovery of modern years has been of greater benefit to mankind than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, or has done more to relieve pain and suffering. J. W. Vaughn, of Oshkosh, N. W., says: "I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in my family for several years, and find it to be the best medicine I ever used for cramps in the stomach and bowels. For sale at Palace Drug Store."
